DETAILED ACTIONClaim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1, 2, and 4-7 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Gerzon et al, US Patent 5,757,927 in view of Gefvert, US Patent 5,850,457.

Gerzon et al disclose a surround sound apparatus comprising a sound source, surround sound decoder 2 which processes B-Format signals for decoding multichannel sound signals (per claims 2, 5 and 7), amplifiers 3 and a plurality of speakers 4. Figure 6 shows a speaker layout with at least two speakers orthogonal to each other. Gerzon et al do not teach that the decoded signals are sent to a single speaker cabinet with a plurality of speakers, two of which are orthogonal to each other, for reproducing the multichannel sound signals at virtual locations. Gefvert disclose a multi-dimensional sound system comprising an audio amplifier 78 and speaker enclosure 50 having a plurality of speakers. The purpose of the Gefvert invention is to reproduce a multichannel sound source using only one speaker cabinet. It was taught in column 4 lines 60-63 that the system can be used for Ambisonic (B-Format) signals. The audio amplifier 78 used time delays to create virtual sound sources from the input signals. As suggested in column 5 lines 38-43, the advantage of the system was to be able to reduce the number of loudspeakers while still reproducing the multi-dimensional sound.

Therefore, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time of invention to integrate the teachings of Gefvert in the invention disclosed by Gerzon et al. The Gerzon et al invention would be modified by including time delays in the surround sound decoder 2 to generate virtual sound sources and replacing the plurality of speakers 4 with the speaker enclosure 92 of Gefvert which has speakers orthogonal to each other. Independent claims 1, 4 and 6 are met.

Claim 3 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Gerzon et al in view of Gefvert as applied to claim 1 above, and further in view of Fosgate. The combination of Gerzon et al and Gefvert teach a sound system with a B-Format decoder that produces virtual sound sources coupled to a speaker cabinet having a plurality of speaker units, at least two orthogonal to each other. However, the combination does not disclose that the speaker cabinet is on the roof of a room. Fosgate discloses a ceiling mounted speaker. One of ordinary skill in the art would have been motivated to provide a ceiling mounted speaker since it conserves space in a listening environment. Therefore, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time of invention to use the teachings of Fosgate in the combination of Gerzon et al and Gefvert.

Conclusion

The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. Yanagawa et al, US Patent 5,953,432.
